cattle for several years on drives to Kansas and Texas by 1886, he was a foreman of the Major Drumm Ranch (T-5 Ranch) at the mouth of the Medicine River. After marriage, they made the Cherokee Strip Run to homestead and staked a permanent claim on Horse Creek, near Carmene, where they built a sod house and where they had their children. In 1896 they bought a ranch near Fairvalley and moved there in 1903.

Alph became involved in the territorial and state politics and chosen a member of the Council from the 12 district. He served in the 6th and 7th Territorial Assemblies. When Okla became a state in 1907, Alph was elected a senator and served in the first two legislatures for 1907, 1908 and 1909. In 1909 he returned to fulltime stock raising on his ranch near Fairvalley, where he also operated a general merchandise store next to the cattle trail from Hennessey to Freedom. After Ellie died Alph moved to Freedom, OK to live with his son Sam. Ref:"Pioneer Footprints Across Woods Co."
